1	2	Ricky Rubio	Ricky averaged 11.0 ppg and 8.3 apg in 4 games this week and that was enough to take over the top spot from Kyrie Irving even though Rubio's average score increased. His shooting is coming back down to earth as he went 10/41 (24.4%) from the field this week.	3.29	2.86	0.43
2	1	Kyrie Irving	It seems that Irving and Rubio will be battling for the top spot all year. Irving continued to show that he is the most prolific score of this group by averaging 18.5 ppg this week but he also had 18 turnovers in his 4 games. His score had the biggest increase of the week.	3.71	2.71	1.00
3	3	Kemba Walker	Walker also played in 4 games this week and averaged 12.3 ppg. His ranking and average score stayed exactly the same as last week. He looks to continue to play 30+ minutes per game for the foreseeable future due to Bobcat injuries.	4.14	4.14	0.00
4	5	Iman Shumpert	Shumpert improved his average score the most this week where in 4 games he averaged 36 mpg, 13.5 ppg, 4.0 apg, and 3.3 spg. He also went 11/12 from the FT line to take top rookie honors in that category from Jimmer. Look for a minutes decrease when Baron comes back.	4.29	5.00	-0.71
5	4	Norris Cole	Cole lowered his average score but still dropped a spot in the rankings due to Shumpert's great week. Cole was unimpressive in his 4 games this week where he averaged 16.3 mpg and never topped double digitis in points. He also only had 1 steal but did go 2/3 from deep to improve his 3pt %.	4.57	4.71	-0.14
6	7	Brandon Knight	Knight averaged 36 mpg in 4 games and scored 14.5 ppg while adding 4.3 apg. He also went 16/18 from the charity stripe which helped him lower his score by half a point.	4.71	5.29	-0.58
7	6	Isaiah Thomas	Isaiah struggled this week after breaking onto the scene last week. He only played in 3 of the Kings' 4 games and went a combined 2/15 from the field. He did chip in with 5 assists in only 22 minutes against the Grizzlies.	5.57	5.00	0.57
8	8	Jimmer Fredette	Jimmer narrowed the gap between him and the rest of field by lowering his average score this past week. Most of it was due to his last outing where he played a career high 33 minutes and scored a career high 20 points. Depending on injuries look for Jimmer to potentially play extended minutes.	5.71	6.00	-0.29
